May Meeting Turning Challenge

This month’s turning challenge theme is “May flowers”. As always, feel free to use your imagination. I’m sure we will all enjoy the results of this challenge.

May Meeting Woodturning Demonstration:

Square-Edged Woodturning with Chip Siskey

Our own KCWT member Chip Siskey will demonstrate his technique of inside-out woodturning. Chip has been a member of Kansas City Woodturners and the Northland Woodturners for a number of years and he has honed his talents well.

For those of you who don't know what square-edged woodturning might be, it is a great example of a technique called "how'd he make that?" According to Chip, it involves cutting a block of wood into four pieces, temporarily gluing them back together with scrap wood between the pieces, turning the outside, removing the scrap pieces, then re-gluing the four pieces. The result is a round bowl with corners. Impossible?

Expect Chip's demo to be informative and interesting to every level of woodturner.

Last April Meeting's Demonstration

Surface Design with Jerry McMaster

Our own KCWT member Jerry McMaster demonstrated how to turn a relatively uninteresting block of wood into a beautiful art object using his surface design techniques. Jerry has been tutored by the best. I predict that before too long, he will be tutoring long lines of eager pupils. Jerry's demonstration was as good or better than some professional turner's demos I've seen.

by Bob Davis

Last month's Turning Challenge theme was the "EGG". First place went to Jerry McMaster. Unfortunately, I don't have a photograph of Jerry's masterpiece. Second place went to Bob Davis for his "Woodturner's Breakfast".
